

I am opposed to the FCC proposal to remove/alter the rules that are in place to limit broadcast ownership of radio station, television networks, and newspaper media.

I believe that the FCC has an obligation to protect the public's media domain so that the voice of a "few corporations" do not dominate my exposure to the world through radio, tv, and newspaper. I live in Orlando, Florida and have seen a steady decline in the availability of independent music, news, and entertainment on the radio and television. Any further allowances to increase broadcast ownership by a single company will further deteriorate this situation.
